Guidelines for developing a research proposal

Preparing a research proposal

This guideline is for applicants proposing to undertake masters by research. Applicants must include a research proposal of not more than 1250 words with their applications. It must be uploaded on OASIS at <https://oasis.dfat.gov.au>

Applicants should be familiar with Australia's aid policy and country development priorities before submitting an application for an Australia Awards Scholarship. Information provided at the websites given below form some of the essential reading.

Outline of a research proposal

1. Research title

In no more than 15-30 words, provide a descriptive title for the proposal.

2. Synopsis of research proposal

In no more than 50-100 words, write a short synopsis of the overall research project.

3. Research objectives

In no more than 50-100 words, describe the objective(s) of the research and the key question(s) the research will explore. Make sure questions are clear, unambiguous and focused.

4. Rationale and expected outcomes

In no more than 100-150 words explain how the research proposal:

- addresses a knowledge gap in the field of study
- is significant and relevant for Myanmar.

Outline discussions with a potential university supervisor and any other key stakeholders about the proposed research ideas.

5. Relevance to priority sectors

In no more than 50-100 words, outline the importance of the research to one of the priority fields of study for Australia Awards Myanmar 2023.

6. Literature review

In no more than 100-200 words, outline research undertaken in the field of study and assess knowledge gap and its significance to development of Myanmar. Attach references as an appendix.

7. Research methodology

In no more than 100-200 words, review any relevant research literature and describe the research methods to be used (such as theoretical basis, tools and techniques of analysis and the stages of the research). Innovative and cost-effective approaches will be favourably considered. Where appropriate, explain how the research will contribute to economic and environmental development, gender equality, disability and social inclusion.

8. Outputs/Deliverables

In no more than 50-100 words, explain the time-frame for the research and the expected final outputs or deliverables. These could include:

- academic outputs such as thesis, thesis articles for journals and conference presentations
- policy materials such as policy briefs
- publish in open access journals or pre-publication versions of the research
- deliver seminars/workshops on return.

9. Significance of the research to Potential Outcomes

In no more than 50-100 words, explain how the research can continue on return to your country and opportunities that already exist to continue the research.

10. Fieldwork and time-frame

In no more than 100-150 words, explain any fieldwork required and an indicative time-line to complete it. Provide an indication of costs involved in fieldwork.
